Current Situation:

Evacuations on the El Dorado County side of the fire were reduced from mandatory to voluntary as of 8pm tonight, July 4, 2016. Only residents with identification will be permitted past the roadblocks. Residents throughout the fire area are advised that there is still active fire inside the containment lines, and they may be asked to evacuate again should conditions change. Fire traffic is still heavy as firefighters work to fully contain the fire. Please drive slowly and use caution on roadways.

The fire was most active today at the southwestern corner as crews carefully burned to containment lines, bringing fire slowly to the river and reducing the chance that it will cross the river. They will continue that burn tonight, as conditions permit.

Crews around the rest of the fire began to mop up, identifying and extinguishing any remaining hot spots that could compromise the firelines. They will continue that work tonight. Mop up presents some safety challenges to firefighters, as stump holes and snags are common in the burned area. Interior pockets of fuel continue to ignite and burn, and residents and visitors in the area will likely see smoke inside containment lines regularly in the coming days.

The only campground directly affected by the fire is Dru Barner in the Georgetown Ranger District which is within the closure area. No roads or campgrounds are closed in the Tahoe National Forest due to this fire.

Access to the Middle Fork of the American River From Oxbow Reservoir put in to Ruck-A-Chucky take out is temporarily closed to protect firefighter and public safety. Please see the full closure order on the website for more information.
