Partial BARC imagery was available for production of the soil burn severity map utilized for all modeling and analyses pursuant to this assessment; portions were hand-mapped based upon helicopter reconnaissance and field review, and 'simplistic' polygons do not reflect the patch size and mosaic nature of the burn at small scale. RSAC is pursuing further imagery acquisition, when it becomes available it can and should be modified to provide a better product that is accurate at smaller scales; the authors will be available to complete this from our home unit to make it available for future analyses by the Forest and cooperators involved in emergency management.
